Coffee Is The Drink Of Small Minded Conservative Losers

Good on you. You drink coffee. Well done. We here at Sordid Zine are really impressed that you can stomach a drink that quite frankly reminds us of a warm sloppy shit. Think about it, coffee is brown, shit is brown, and they both stink. We're pretty certain that if you drank shit, your breath might smell better than that of a coffee drinker*. We can never be sure when the coffee thing kicks in. Sometimes it's to impress that alternative kid at school who has been drinking coffee since they were three years old. Maybe it starts that one morning you're really tired and you accidentally spill the crap into a cup and it goofs you up for a few hours. Maybe you are at a friend's house and are too cowardly to say that you've never had it before and are forced to pretend to like drinking something that is akin to a bucket of sea water, just like the time you started smoking. We don't care, frankly we think really little of you anyway. If you cant stand up on your own and make up your own mind than what the hell are you even doing trying to rationalise your rhetoric to us?

Don't come here asking for us to make you this drink and then complain when the only thing we have on offer isn't what you drink and that the way we make it isn't the way you like it. You've got to realise that things can and are done differently in different places. That to us is what is exciting about the world: the different discourses, the new experiences, the unexpected outcomes. If you want things the same way you do things all the time, we have some advice for you; stay at home, don't interact with anybody and keep your half-thought out opinions to yourself.

We're fairly certain that most coffee drinkers are also horribly homo-sexual, the ones that make other homo-sexuals uncomfortable. This one is a dead give-away (he's describing his perfect man on his coffee cup).

*Let's face it, you don't like the taste of either of the two as well. Don't tell us that the four sugars you stir into every cup is because you're keeping the children of some third world country employed. You're hiding the taste, you know it, we know it, how about just admitting it and moving on with your life.

We're sick of people hiding behind the "my opinion that has to be respected" thing that is all over the internet. Sure your opinion maybe valid, but so is anybody else's that see things differently. An opinion is never wrong, it is based on personal taste and the interpretation of information at hand by the person in question. Just because you like something doesn't mean that it is good in an all encompassing umbrella of "GOOD". What you like is shit to us and what we like is shit to you, we're both right, deal with it.